Introduction

THE UNIVERSITY OF BARCELONA

Founded in 1450, the University of Barcelona, with its dynamic, critical, constructive and humanist nature, is a national and international benchmark in the fields of education, science and thought.

Each year, demand far surpasses the availability of places and the University of Barcelona community comprises more than 65.000 students. The high quality training that the University of Barcelona offers encompasses all areas of knowledge: humanities, health sciences, social sciences, experimental sciences, and engineering.

Active participation in networks such as the League of European Research Universities (LERU) complements and strengthens the UB's institutional and international policies regarding research, teaching quality, the transfer of knowledge within society and internationalization.

WHY TAKE AN OFFICIAL UNIVERSITY MASTER'S DEGREE?

- They are academically recognised titles.
- The UB offers more than 150 official university master's degrees, adapted to the EHEA and recognised both in Spain and throughout Europe.
- They grant access to doctoral studies.
- They prepare candidates for research work.
- They offer advanced training, of a specialized or multi-disciplinary nature, which allows for subsequent academic and/or professional specialisation.

GENERAL INFORMATION ON UNIVERSITY MASTER'S DEGREES

The university master's degrees are addressed to graduates in various areas of knowledge. They are all official titles, adapted to the European Higher Education Area (EHEA), that are academically recognised throughout Europe and that can be validated in other countries.

The typical language of instruction for master's degree studies is Catalan/Spanish, while some courses are taught partially or entirely in English. For specific information on languages(s) of instruction consult the web page for the master's degree in question.

Access and admissions

To be eligible for a university master's degree candidates must be in possession of at least one of the following qualifications:

- An official Spanish university title, i.e., a bachelor's degree, licentiate degree, engineering degree or architecture degree or, also, a diploma, technical engineering degree or technical architecture degree.
- A degree awarded by a higher education institution from within the European Higher Education Area (EHEA), which grants access to official master's degree studies.
- A degree from outside the EHEA. In this case the degree must be covalidated with an official Spanish degree or the University of Barcelona must verify (without covalidation) that the studies in question would be equivalent to a corresponding official Spanish university degree and that they would, in the country of issue, grant access to official master's degree studies. Admission to a university master's degree does not, in any case, imply the covalidation of the degree used to obtain access or its recognition to any other effect than acceptance to the master's degree course.

In addition to the general requirements for access, some courses have specific pre-requisites for admission. For more information, consult the individual master's degree web pages.

To access a university master's degree a pre-enrolment application must be completed in order to be inscribed in the selection process. Once candidates are selected the enrolment procedure takes place. Pre-enrolment can be made for various master's degrees. The main web page for university master's degrees offers a "Pre-enrolment" option, from which pre-enrolment applications can be completed online. The period established for pre-enrolment may be specific to the particular university master's degree.

Structure and duration

The university master's degree programmes comprise a study load equal to a minimum of 60 ECTS credits and a maximum of 120 ECTS credits. This corresponds to a duration of between one and two academic years. Bear in mind that, however, depending on a candidate's previous training, the coordination committee for the master's degree may require the completion of train-up courses (up to a maximum of 30 credits) prior to the start of the master's degree course.

The curricula of these master's courses encompass theoretical and practical training delivered through compulsory subjects, optional subjects, seminars, work placements, supervised learning activities and assessment tasks, and culminate in the preparation and public defence of a final project, which represents between 6 and 30 ECTS credits depending on the programme. Detailed information on course content and specializations offered is available on the web page for each university master's degree.

Pricing

Fees for the university master's degree courses follow public pricing set down by the Government of Catalonia, as provided for by the Decree on public prices and in accordance with the relevant agreements of the UB's Governing Council and Social Council. These agreements can determine special rates for foreign and non-resident students who are not nationals of an EU Member State.

Interuniversity master's degree courses

The interuniversity master's degrees are those taught through a joint programme between two or more Spanish universities with a unique curriculum, for which each of the participating universities offers a specific number of subjects. The conditions of mobility are detailed in the information on each interuniversity master's degree.

Erasmus Mundus master's degree courses

These are integrated study programmes that have been awarded the "Erasmus Mundus" quality seal granted by the European Commission. They are each taught by a consortium of at least three universities in three different countries, at least one of which is an EU Member State. Candidates who enrol in these courses must attend at least two of the universities that teach them.
