

For all participants to TASP2011 (Tohoku University Arts and Letters Summer Program)

The city of Sendai, where Tohoku University is located, and the Tohoku region in general suffered severe damage from the Great East Japan Earthquake. However, Tohoku University remains steadfast, and is working positively toward reconstruction. We have decided to implement our Summer Program as scheduled.

1. Living Conditions in Sendai

The food and supply shortages that arose after the earthquake have nearly disappeared; sufficient food and supplies can be obtained just as before the earthquake. Supermarket hours are somewhat shorter than before, but the stores are operating normally. Electricity, water and gas have been restored within the city, with a few exceptions. City public transportation is already back to normal.

2. Fukushima Nuclear Plant

Sendai is well outside the evacuation area of 30km around the plant set by the Japanese government. According to monitoring of airborne radiation performed by the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT), radiation levels have remained low and stable, and do not pose any health risk. For detailed monitoring results, please see the below website.

-Tohoku University: <http://www.bureau.tohoku.ac.jp/anzen/monitoring/english.html>

-MEXT: http://www.mext.go.jp/english/radioactivity_level/index.htm

Unfortunately, the problem at the plant itself has not been resolved, so we cannot say that the situation is 100% safe. However, at this time it poses no restrictions on everyday activities in Sendai.

We realize that many students overseas may feel uneasy about coming to Japan due to the media's (sometimes overwhelming) coverage of the incident. With aftershocks expected to continue for some time to come, there is a certain amount of risk. However, as long as you can gather reliable information, and remain calm, your time here will be safe.

We hope that you understand the above, and let your students obtain accurate information about conditions in Sendai and Tohoku University

Yoshiaki Nemoto

Executive Director

Center for International Exchange, Tohoku University